Access Conference Sessions Now

In case you missed the news in last week's IR Weekly, the archived 2017 NIRI Annual Conference session materials are now available on the NIRI website. I know some attendees wished they could have been several places at once because of the wealth of the content at the event. Accessing the online archives is a great way to catch up on those sessions that you couldn't attend.

The number of IR professionals that have earned the IRC credential since it was introduced in 2016 is now almost 120. The applications for the next exam window (September 9-16) have been strong. I encourage you to learn about and participate in the IRC program, the first professional IR certification in the U.S. The final application deadline for the September exam is July 28, 2017.

Finally, we're delighted to welcome two new members to the NIRI national team. This week we are joined by Shannon Potter, Director of Education and Programs, and Bles Dones, Manager of Membership & Marketing. You can find access info for our new team members and all the NIRI staff on the Contact Us page of the NIRI website.

Have a great week,

Matt
